

MARRIAGE AND A SILVER WEDDING

Double Celebration Of Royal Matrimonial Events In Berlin.

A HOLIDAY IN THE GERMAN EMPIRE

Kaiser And Kaiserin Stood Before Marital Altar Twenty-Five Years Ago, And Prince Eitel Frederick Is Wedded Today.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Berlin, Feb. 27.—There was a double celebration of matrimonial events in the German Empire today. One was the silver wedding of the Kaiser and the other was the marriage of his second son.

The Silver Wedding
All over the empire the people joined enthusiastically in the celebration of the 25th anniversary of the marriage of the Kaiser with the Empress Augusta Victoria. In spite of the strong opposition to the Kaiser's militaristic policies which undoubtedly exists there, is at the bottom of every German heart, even that of the most radical socialist, not a little admiration of the Kaiser, who after all is a typical German and whose patriotism and honesty of purpose all recognize and respect.

Gaiety in Capital
The capital had put on its gayest attire, and large crowds thronged the streets, which were most elaborately decorated with flags and bunting. Leading manufacturers and merchants had vied with each other in contributing to the brilliancy of the display. All the public buildings in the city were decked in the most elaborate manner. The decorations of Unter den Linden and Friedrichstrasse were especially profuse. The Brandenburg gate was covered with laurel wreaths, hanging from which were streamers of dark crimson velvet. Everywhere in the windows of stores and dwellings were to be seen pictures of the Kaiser and Kaiserin, the Crown Prince and Crown Princess, and other members of the imperial family. In other cities throughout the empire, as in Berlin, the day was observed as a general holiday.

Quiet Family Party
The imperial couple observed their silver wedding anniversary in the midst of a quiet family party. The ambassadors called during the forenoon and presented messages of felicitation in behalf of the sovereigns and powers they represent. Despite the expressed desire of the Kaiser that no personal gifts be made there were many presents received at the palace from German municipalities, societies and individuals in all walks of life.

Many Magnificent Gifts
Both the Kaiser and the Kaiserin were delighted with the magnificent present received from the German societies of the United States, and they made no effort to conceal their pleasure. The gift, which has been sent across the Atlantic, consisted of a costly silver punch bowl, more than four feet high and two feet in diameter. Silver, gold, ivory, bronze and onyx entered into its composition. The base, of mahogany, is inlaid with forty-six kinds of wood, brought from the forty-six states and territories of the American union.

Much for Hospitals
The suggestion of the Kaiser that funds intended to buy presents for the imperial couple should be used instead for the establishment of hospitals, asylums and kindred institutions met with a widespread response from municipalities and wealthy individuals throughout the country. Reports received from many sources indicate that more than one hundred such public institutions, representing endowments of nearly 100,000,000 marks, were dedicated today in commemoration of the imperial silver wedding. Most of these institutions bear the name of the Kaiser or his wife.

In Retrospect
It was on this date twenty-five years ago that the young Princess Augusta Victoria of Schleswig-Holstein, became the bride of the future Emperor William II., then the crown prince. Singularly enough their courtship began not in Germany but in England. It was at Cumberland lodge, where the present Empress was staying as a young girl with her uncle and guardian, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, the eldest of Queen Victoria's sons-in-law, that Emperor William made the acquaintance of his future wife, and that the match was first mooted. In fact, Queen Victoria, who

ROB RUSSIA BANK IN FINDLAND OF $37,500

Ten Men Force Entrance Into Institution, Holding Employees at Bay With Empty Tomato Cans.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Helsinki, Finland, Feb. 27.—Ten men forced an entrance into the Russian state bank, shot the guardian and secured $37,500. The robbers have not been captured.

The robbery was committed, with amazing boldness, in broad day and on the principal street of the city. The robbers forced the unarmed employees to throw up their hands, took the keys of the safe and then drove them into an adjoining room, warning them that on any attempt to escape two "bombs" which they placed against the door would be exploded. The "bombs," however, were merely empty tomato cans.

The robbers remained in the bank for ten minutes, packing the plunder in small bags. Their leader held a short conversation over the telephone with some unknown person, after which he jerked the telephone receiver from its cord and then the band decamped.

The corpse of the guardian, who was shot while he was rushing into the room, was mutilated with a knife by one of the robbers, who are thought to be revolutionists from the Baltic.

RECEIVER FOR CHICAGO FIRM

Federal Court Names Man To Take Charge Of Mammoth Mail Order Concern.

POSTAL INSPECTORS ON THE TRAIL

Investigation By United States Officials Leads To Suits By Creditors Of The Association.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Chicago, Ill., Feb. 27.—Federal Judge S. H. Bethea Monday appointed Edwin C. Day receiver for the Cash Buyers' Union First National Co-operative society. The concern is a mammoth mail order house of $5,000,000 capital stock, supposed to be modeled after the Manchester co-operative society of England. It has stockholders among farmers and laboring people throughout the country. It occupies an eight-story building at Jackson boulevard and Green street.

The action was taken on the petition of three creditors who acted at the direct instigation of the postal authorities, who have been conducting an investigation of the company during the last six months. Criminal prosecution depends upon the examination of the books, which will be taken up under the receivership. The postoffice inspectors say that $1,027,000 worth of common stock has been sold. Julius Kahn, formerly with Sears, Roebuck & Co., is president. Admitted liabilities are close to $200,000, and it is estimated that the merchandise on hand is not worth more than $150,000. The open bank account of the society is $30.

Following this action a move to block the receivership and all court proceedings was taken at a meeting of representatives of twenty-two creditors held in the office of the society. This meeting was called for the purpose of ascertaining the condition of the society. The claims of the creditors represented were $750,000. Circular Letter to Creditors.—The following circular letter was sent out to the rest of the creditors by a committee representing the foregoing firms: "It was decided by the meeting that the best interests of all creditors would be conserved by their acting as a unit and administering the society's affairs out of court, if possible. Inasmuch as proceedings are now pending, it may be necessary temporarily to act through the medium of the court, but if the creditors will substantially all join with us we think there is no question but what the affairs can be handled out of court. From the representations made we believe this concern can be relieved of its financial difficulties and proceed to business in the usual course of affairs, and we think it will be to your interests to co-operate with us in bringing about this condition."

Will Close Out.—Receiver Day, in charge of the Cash Buyers' Union of the First National Co-operative society, gave orders today to close up the business of the concern. The receiver announced he had, by hasty examination, come to the conclusion there were goods in the hands of the company valued at a quarter of a million dollars. The liabilities consist of debts to eleven hundred merchants in all parts of the country and approximate a quarter of a million dollars.

An expert accountant's examination of the books of the Mississippi Valley Elevator and Grain company, who committed suicide in St. Louis, February 14, shows a shortage of $15,000.

A man giving his name as John H. Waterhouse of Seattle, Wash., was arrested in St. Louis on the charge of forgery while presenting for payment a check for $100 bearing the name of William Loefel, a St. Louis jeweler. Representatives of the Presbyterian church, Presbyterian church south, United Presbyterian church, Reformed church in America and the Reformed Presbyterian church will meet at Charlotte, N. C., on March 14 for the purpose of preparing a basis for the federation of the denominations.

When the tables had been cleared and the cigars passed William Smith, the toast master, introduced the first speaker of the evening A. E. Matheson. Mr. Matheson's subject was "The Lawyer's Influence and Responsibility."
The speaker treated the inception of the law and its glorious calling as it first appeared in America. He told of the work done by Titus in the early colony days of Massachusetts. of Patrick Henry in Virginia, to awaken the people from their lethargy as to the English oppression. The part played by the lawyers in the drawing up of the Declaration of Independence, of adapting it of organizing the great federations of states after the Revolutionary period. The lawyers who have held responsible positions under state and nation were all dilated upon.
Mr. Matheson believed that the calling of the law demanded the talents of the world's greatest men and that such men should possess a heart warm for humanity. There should be three goals for the lawyer to seek to reach: As a public man, as a member of society and as a lawyer practicing his profession. Mr. Matheson explained that his remarks had been his thoughts in his graduating address in 1894 and that his eleven or twelve years as a practicing attorney had not altered them. He still believed that in the cause of humanity the field for the lawyer was wide and far.Free Catarrh Remedy

Mr. Smith then called upon Judge Dunwiddie to speak on "Uniformity of Court Rules." The Judge explained the variety of rules which are to be found in the different circuits of the state, in many ways conflicting, and making practice for attorneys difficult in different circuits. The judges of the different circuits make their own rules for the practice in their particular circuit and at a recent meeting of the circuit court judges held in Madison a committee consisting of Judges Hastings of Green Bay, Stevens of Madison and Halsey of Milwaukee were appointed to draw up a uniform set of rules which would be later approved by the supreme court and made uniform throughout the state.
The rules now in practice by the supreme court are twenty-six years old and in many cases conflict with the passage of new laws. Judge Dunwiddie stated that a rough copy of the proposed rules had been drawn up and he would be glad to confer with any members of this circuit regarding them and submit their suggestions to the committee that is soon to meet in Madison.Hon. A. A. Jackson
In introducing Mr. A. A. Jackson, President Smith said that he had two subjects to present: one the discovery of a set of laws in the ruins of Babylonia that preceded the Mosaic law by some four hundred years and also to read a brief sketch of one of the early Probate judges of this country whose existence had almost been forgotten. Mr. Jackson responded and first gave a brief memorial to Judge Bailey, one of the judges of the Forties. Judge Bailey was born in Waterford, N. Y., in 1814 and was educated in New York city and at Union college, graduating from that institution in 1834. He later studied law and was admitted to the bar in 1837.
He came to Wisconsin in 1839, making his home in Janesville, buying land in what is now known as Monterey.
He was married in 1842 and brought his bride to the first brick house ever built in Janesville and now standing on North Main street. He was a court commissioner and justice of the peace and probate judge in 1843 and 1844. He died in 1860. Mr. Jackson then gave a brief review of the early maneuver of dealing out justice in the days when no jail existed. The wonderful discovery recently made in Babylonia of laws that were in force four hundred years before Moses gave down his famous tables of laws to the Israelites. The similarity of these laws with the Mosaic code is marked. It was also interesting to note that at this same period the King of Babylonia had performed the wonderful feat of irrigation which is now being put into execution on our own western plains. Mr. Jackson believes that the ancients reached a high state of perfection in civilization which fell into disuse after the Roman empire and is now again reaching the pinnacle.Judge Fifield
Mr. Smith then introduced Judge Fifield, who spoke on "Law and Reason." In Judge Fifield's opinion the real use of the law would be nothing without reason. The close association of law and reason was often lost sight of by the lawyers who sought argument to prove their points in argument.
Law traced back to its inception showed that reason was used in the beginning and the two have been closely associated ever since. The jury system as it exists today in Judge Fifield's mind should be revised. He looked for some remedy which would do away with the unanimous verdict.
The compelling of men to sit on a jury for fifty cents a day when their labor should give more to them, the long and exhaustive search for jurors on important cases and the final "hanging" of the jury were evils that he thought might be averted if ten jurors should stand for conviction in criminal cases and in civil cases.
These majority verdicts would do much to facilitate the ways of justice and make the long and tedious trials less expensive for the taxpayers and less exhaustive for the judge, jury and attorneys. The Judge caused a smile when he recommended what as a study for a lawyer to pursue to fit himself for his legal work. What in the judge's opinion is an excellent training for the mind and enables the lawyer to win his own salvation.Dougherty and Sale
The "Terms of Court" was briefly spoken of by W. H. Dougherty and then Judge Sale was called upon to make a review of what had been said of interest during the evening. In other words the Judge was asked by the President to "Babylon a little."
The Judge briefly reviewed the salient points in the papers of the evening and approved of the sentiment that was expressed. He said that after hearing such addresses one realized that there is a possibility in a lawyer's life that all lawyers do not live up to. He was glad that Mr.
Jackson had discovered in ancient Babylonia that the lawyers had held an important place as of late years the ministers had appeared to have a monopoly on all the stones dug up or the history revealed. He believed that the ancient Babylonian laws were a true strenuous for this day and age, but he thought that perhaps many of them might be copied into our present code with good effect. He spoke of the sympathy expressed for criminals by the public and how the law had to take the middle ground.
Judge Sale believed that a law that does not exist on a reason should not exist. He also expressed an opinion that we do not execute the laws we have sufficiently.Oestreich on Problems Attorney Otto Oestreich was then called upon to talk on "The Problems of the Young Lawyer." His address was full of witty remarks, good stories and funny experiences. He made a special dig at a certain attorney who once advertised that in ten days square deal, graft he proposed to stand by his clients and give them perhaps the lawyer had turned over a new leaf and should be encouraged Mr.
Oestreich, however, suggested that an amendment that the word "graft" be inserted in the advertisement in question, making it three G's. Mr. Oestreich was of the opinion that the lawyers were the peacemakers of society; that if lawyers fought among themselves long enough there wouldbe nothing left for their clients to fight for.Other Talks Harvey Clark, former member of the Green County Bar, and now superintendent of the State School for the Blind, was called upon and made a few remarks in which he urged the attorneys to study the state institutions and learn the methods of procedure. Rev. Laughlin was then introduced and spoke briefly on his pleasure of being present, stating that he believed the province of the lawyer was to right the wrongs of humanity and bring justice to injustice.
H. H. Clough then spoke a few words thanking the members of the bar for the courtesy they had shown him. H.
H. Blanchard then argued at length that reason came from the Devil and if we used too much reason we would all go to the devil. Mr. Blanchard expressed a hope of creating heaven himself. Ed Ryan then told a few stories and the meeting then adjourned.
The following is a list of those

CANNON HOLDS
FATE OF BILLSUCCESS OF SUBSIDY MEASURES DEPENDS ON SPEAKER.

WILL HE TURN INSURGENT?

If He Opposes Bill, He Must, for All Republican House Leaders Are Supporters.By William Wolff Smith.
Washington, D. C. (Special Correspondence).—Now that the shipping bill has safely passed the senate, it and the fate of the American merchant marine rests in the hands of Speaker Cannon. That the measure as it passed the senate will be approved by the speaker is the confident prediction of those most familiar with this legislation. Mr. Cannon was opposed to some features of the original bill and credit should be given him for the elimination of some of its most objectionable features which, followed by the amendments in the senate, preceded the vote on the bill, have greatly improved the measure and strengthened its chances of success. It is stated that Speaker Cannon's principal objection to the bill was the amendment granting an additional mail subsidy to the American line, which made such a strong argument for a subsidy bill some years ago under the terms of which this line would have secured almost all the benefits.
Speaker Cannon is not forgetful of the stormy current at the capitol of the lobby behind this measure and its methods which created such widespread condemnation by the press and public. In fact most of the criticism of the present bill is based on the erroneous impression that it is similar to the former measure and that the same combination is behind it, so that it has suffered greatly before the country from the malodorous reputation of its predecessors. Consequently, although the provision in the bill relating to the American line gave it only $250,000 a year, the speaker was determined that not even that much "graft" should be had. By the composition of the house committee on merchant marine, he let it be known that he intended to control the situation and the obnoxious amendment was eliminated in the senate.
It goes without saying that it will not be put on again in the house.Other changes, such as the elimination of subsidies to vessels carrying special cargoes for special interests, such as the Standard Oil company operates, the limitation of the naval reserve and the confining of subventions to American vessels flying between America and foreign ports, are said to be in line with the speaker's ideas. While he may have other suggestions it is felt he no longer opposes the bill.
In fact, should he do so, an anomalous situation would present itself.
With the possible exception of the speaker, there is not a prominent republican in the house who opposes the bill. Representatives Grosvenor, Danzel, the other members of the committee on rules, heartily favor it.
Mr. Grosvenor being one of its authors and chairman of the committee which will report it. Representative Payne, chairman of the Ways and Means committee, has had bills of his own on the same subject. Representative Full of Iowa, chairman of the Military Affairs committee, is favorably impressed by the representations of the army general staff in behalf of the project, while Representative Foss of Illinois, chairman of the committee on naval affairs, is equally impressed by the recommendations of the navy department through the board of which Admiral Dewey is president.
In some quarters Representative Tawney, of Minnesota, is represented as opposing the bill as chairman of the appropriations committee, but as he gave out an interview last summer to the effect that something should be done at this session to assist the American merchant marine, it is believed he favors the bill but will wait for the speaker to let his attitude be known before saying anything. Other prominent Republicans who are safely counted as for the bill are: Representatives Balloch of Wisconsin, Littlefield of Maine, Loudenslager and Gardner of New Jersey, Gardner of Massachusetts, Miner of Wisconsin.

ON A LONG JOURNEYThere Was No Room in Hospital Last Night for Jacob Allen, Who Was Run Down by a Train.In attempting to board a moving train on the North-Western road near the North High street crossing last evening, Jacob C. Allen of Evansville, a married man about twenty-two years of age, missed connections, and fell under the cars. His right foot was caught under the wheels and all of the toes were badly crushed. The Palmer hospital was unable to provide accommodations, owing to its crowded condition, and Russell's ambulance conveyed him first to the barn, where it was necessary to replace the single horse by a team for the long haul, and then to the county poor farm. It would have been just the same had the man been dying and had the tem-emergency accommodations which Janesville does not provide for those who are injured within its confines constitute a disgrace which should cause thoughtful and conscientious citizens to hang their heads in shame.PILES CURED and conscientious dealers and manufacturers.

All over the state the experiment station has met with hearty co-operation from both consumers and producers in the work of raising the standard of stock foods. They have lent their assistance in every possible way, reporting suspicious carloads, sending samples for analysis and tabulating such as were declared below grade. In accordance with the provisions of the law forty-two manufacturers and dealers have taken out licenses for sixty-one different brands of concentrated feeding stuffs in this state for the past calendar year. The dealers appreciate the benefit of the law, which enables them to guarantee the purity of the feeds which they handle, and protects them from dishonest competition. During the year 645 feed stores in 191 different cities and towns of the state have been visited, some of them a number of times. Milwaukee, for instance, has been visited eight times, Waukesha four times, and twenty-eight other cities and towns two or three times.

The plan has been to collect samples of all licensed feeding stuffs and all corn and oat feeds of different origin. Samples of mill refuse feeds, especially wheat bran or middlings, were only taken when the feed seemed suspicious as regards purity or composition. Thus, the number of these feeds subjected to chemical analysis was limited, compared with earlier years when samples of outputs from all the largest mills supplying the market in Wisconsin were secured. The number of samples collected by the state inspectors during 1905 was 213, and the number forwarded to the station by dealers and farmers was seventy-seven, making a total of 290 samples received during the year. All of these were subjected to chemical analysis, the results of which are given in the bulletin. The cases of the firms which sold feeds in violation of the law have been taken up by the experiment station, and in the majority of cases the matter has been settled by the withdrawal of the goods from sale in this state.

In order to keep dealers and manufacturers informed in regard to the quality of their goods, the results of the feed analyses are reported to both by mail immediately on completion of the analyses. In case of deficiencies in the guaranteed composition, the manufacturers are enabled to rectify matters by changing either their methods of manufacture or the guarantees under which the product is to be sold. Since inspection is continued throughout the year, neither manufacturer nor dealer can plead ignorance of deterioration occurring in the latter part of the year.

The number of samples which were found to be deficient in protein and fat contents was lower last year than in the year previous. But the percentage of deficiencies is still so large as to furnish conclusive proof that the various manufacturers of licensed feeding stuffs do not pay much attention to the chemical composition of the foods which they put on the market in this state, and generally place their guarantees of valuable food components considerably higher than they have reason to expect the feeds will reach. The figures also give evidence of the indifference of buyers or feeds as to whether the guarantees of the manufacturers are met or not. No permanent improvement in this respect can be hoped for until purchasers of concentrated feeds post themselves more thoroughly in regard to the composition of the various feeds, and come to appreciate the value of high grade feeding stuffs. When this change occurs, the cost of the feed will become of less importance than now, for buyers will realize that feeds of good quality cannot be sold at cheap prices.

Although the gluten feeds sold in this state do not come up to the manufacturers' guarantees, they are feeds of considerable merit, of good quality and free from foreign mixtures. They are easily digestible and especially valuable as feeds for dairy animals, since they supply protein and other important feed constituents to the rations fed. Hominy feeds are the dry residue obtained in the manufacture of hominy from Indian corn. Three different brands were licensed this year. All but two of the collected samples contained the guaranteed percentages of protein, and the average composition was above guarantee for protein in the case of all brands. Deficiencies in the fat content were found in two samples of standard hominy feed, but even in this case the average content came above the manufacturer's guarantee as registered with the experimental station and published in its bulletins. These feeds, like the gluten feeds, can be safely recommended as they are free from adulterations; palatable and easily digestible. Their relatively low protein content and high content of starch and other non-nitrogenous constituents, place them in a class with corn and other cereals, and they may be considered valuable substitutes for these feeds.

Early in the year a shipment of ground rice hulls was found by the experiment station inspector in the warehouse of a Milwaukee feed dealer. This material has practically no feeding value whatever and, what is still worse, owing to the peculiar barbed-like fibers of the hulls and the large amount of silica which they contain, they are dangerous material to feed to stock, and records are at hand showing that they have caused the death of farm animals fed thereon. As it was feared that the shipment would be used for mixing with different feeds and sold as ground feed to owners of horses and other live stock, a notice was sent to the state press calling attention to the danger of this material finding its way into mixed feed and warning buyers of such feed to be on their guard. This notice was given general publicity, and reputable feed dealers in all parts of the state informed us that they would not handle any feeds of this character. As a result no rice hulls, rice bran or rice feeds have been met with in this state since the early part of the year. The ignorance of stupidity displayed by dealers and commission men in trying to sell feed mixtures of this character under a misleading name is but little short of criminal, in view of the dangerous character of rice hulls as an adulterant. The prompt action of the experiment station officers was the means of effectively driving such materials from the feed market of the state, and Wisconsin farmers were thus protected from losses of both money and live stock.

PRESS COMMENT.

Senators Beware!

Chicago Tribune: It behooves the senate to move with the utmost circumspection. The eagle eye of Mr. L. Steffens is upon it.

Where Is The Problem?

Oshkosh Northwestern: A Detroit man advertised his wife for sale for $35. The other day a New York man sold his dog for $1,500. What is the answer?

Storage Egg Men Glum.

La Crosse Chronicle: The storage egg men feel bluer and bluer as the season advances and the great American hen gets in her work, cutting the prices almost daily.

Poetic Inconsistency.

Exchange: A Kansas man wants to know why if you write about the snow on the old man's brow it is poetry, but if you write of the aita on the old man's chin it is slang?

Putting It Pretty Strong.

La Crosse Leader-Press: If the indignant people of an Italian town where W. K. Vanderbilt ran down and injured a child, had lynched Mr. Vanderbilt, it isn't likely that the United States would have gone to war with Italy about it.

An Intemperate Suggestion.

Oshkosh Northwestern: A Kansas dispatch says the farmers of that state have so much old corn left they do not know what to do with it. What is the matter with shipping it to Kentucky and letting the people of that state find out what to do with it?

Green Bay After Sugar Mill.

Shawano Advocate: The city of Green Bay is endeavoring to induce capital to build a sugar beet factory there. Shawano is a much better place for a sugar factory than Green Bay, as it has a better and more farming country tributary to it.

What A Horrible Thought.

Exchange: New York officials have discovered that quantities of candy are being sold in that city which are loaded down with various kinds of "boozes." Perhaps the manufacturers found it necessary to cater to the ladies who attend the theatres and are debauched from going out between the acts.

Honeymoon Was Yet New.

Superior Telegram: Mrs. Yerkess-Mizner complains that just as the honeymoon was new her husband entertained two actresses at a little private wine function. Of course two actresses at a time are not as dangerous as one—but Mr. Mizner seems to get no offset of blame on that account.

Castro's Promised Feat.

El Paso Herald: The famous man who committed suicide by swallowing his own heel did a stunt of ridiculous ease and simplicity compared with Castro's promised feat of "smashing the Monroe doctrine." Br'er Castro will have to be born again as a European monarch to do that; and a rather bigger king than any in the deck at present.

Influence In What Direction?

La Crosse Leader-Press: When conservative professors testify, as was the case at Madison yesterday, that they have less influence over university of Wisconsin students than the football coaches have, it is certainly time for a change, even if that change contemplates the abolition of football instead merely of its suspension for two years.

"Taint" Didn't Worry Haackel.

Exchange: The story is abroad that Andrew Carnegie asked a young man who was about to become a student at Jena to get for him an autograph of Prof. Haackel. "When it arrived," read thus: "Ernest Haackel gratefully acknowledges the receipt from Andrew Carnegie of a Zumpt microscope for the biological laboratory of the Jena university." Mr. Carnegie made good, admiring the scientist more than ever.

"Stretches of Weedy Lawn"

Evening Wisconsin: The faculties of the universities are now troubled with the problem of closely trimming athletics without utterly destroying enthusiasm in field and track sports. The value of athletics is realized by the authorities of all educational institutions, and there is consequently no desire on their part to bring about a state of things under which the gymnasiums would be empty and the campuses become stretches of weedy lawn.

Might Be Good Idea Here.

Waupun Leader: The February term of the circuit court opened in the court house in Juneau Tuesday, February 13, with Judge James J. Dick on the bench. His honor announced that hereafter, when court is in session the stars and stripes be floated from the flag staff on the court house. He said that the American flag is a emblem of justice as well as liberty, and that under its shadow there was a sense of security of personal rights which made men proud of the protection and more patriotic as citizens.

Speaks For Conductor Peck.

Madison Democrat: Whatever circumstances may have been of the collision near Janesville recently by which three lives were lost, the suspicion that the horror is attributable to whiskey must fortunately be abandoned. Conductor Randall A. Peck, upon whom there is some disposition to rest the blame for the wreck, is no drinker. This is the unimpeachable testimony of those who have known him from childhood, and a clean reputation such as his stands one gratefully in need at a time when the clouds thicken all about.

Forty-Story Building.

Milwaukee Free Press: New York is to have a forty-story building when the Singer Sewing Machine company gets through with its present undertaking. The Washington monument, at present the tallest structure in the world, is to be over-structured by the Singer tower by forty feet. The Singer building stands at the southwest corner of Liberty street, and is to be enlarged, and from its center this forty-story tower, sixty-five feet square will rise to the height of 594 feet. The structure is to be of steel, with the walls of ornamental brick and limestone, is to cost $1,500,000, and will have a dome with a cupola and flagstaff. It will be the champion skyscraper of America, making all the other skyscrapers of New York look like street sweepers.

Much Ado About Nothing.

Chicago Chronicle: It is humiliating that in a civilized community a miscreant like Johann Hoch can not be tried, convicted and hanged without tasking all the powers of the state, and becoming a sensation and a craze to the whole community. There are murder cases, of course, that justify a popular excitement, such as that of Dr. Webster in Boston, because of the previous good habits and reputation of the alleged criminal or the fascination inseparable from complicated circumstantial evidence.

The twenty or thirty murderers that are tried in Chicago every year are men of a different type. They are generally ignorant, depraved and obscure and habitual criminals who have been the torment of the police for years. Hoch was an illustration of this worthless class. He was an old-time "Bridewell" thief, a habitual swindler and a professional bigamist. He had followed this course of life for twenty years. The worst feature of his case was his gall. His "fortitude," his "calmness" and his persistent declarations of "innocence," are well known in the police department as the credentials of an incorrigible scoundrel.

Now, the trial and execution of this brute exercised the whole machinery of government and filled the imagination of the whole community for over a year. From the governor of the state down to the jailer all were Hoch crazy for twelve months. The whole business should have been a piece of mere business routine, but it came near being a historical event.

News for the Railroad Men.

Announcement is made that the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad company will build a branch line to Iron River, Mich., as soon as the work can be done in the spring. Heretofore this territory, which contains rich mining properties, has been served exclusively by the Chicago & Northwestern road.

Instead of stopping at Shoshone, Wyoming, to which point they are now rushing their extension from Casper, in order to accommodate the reservation rush next June, the Chicago & Northwestern road will build right on through to the Pacific coast, entering Idaho a little south of the Yellowstone park.

Directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford have decided, on the recommendation of President Melton, to reduce the passenger rate on the Berkshire division from two and one-half to two cents a mile, taking effect March 1. Efforts will be made to learn the advisability of a similar reduction on the Naugatuck and Northampton divisions.

The bill pending in the general assembly of Virginia designed to regulate passenger rates on steam railroads fixes the maximum at two cents per mile on "mileage" tickets and provides that such tickets shall be good for the use of any member of the family of the buyer or for the use of any officer or salaried employee if the buyer is a corporation or firm. The penalty prescribed for violation of the provisions is a fine of not less than $50 nor more than $500 for each offence. The bill has passed the house.

A bill has been introduced in the Massachusetts legislature, requiring railroad corporations to provide a superintendent or other person with each gang of track-laborers, to give a warning of the approach of trains, and to render the corporation liable for injury or death of any person resulting from a failure to provide such superintendent.

MRS. R. W. COON, ARCHBISHOP TO R. F. D. No. 8. BE HERE SUNDAY

As one more of the hundreds of pleased people who have chosen Dr. Richards to do their dental work and do not regret it.

She was in to consult him yesterday and when leaving the office said:

"I have heard so much about your doing PAINLESS dentistry that I was convinced there must be some truth about it. So I came to you.

"Am I sorry I came?"

"Well, I guess not."

"Now I have found out where to come. I shall never have dental work done any other way.

"I never felt a bit of pain."

If Dr. Richards can so please others, he can do YOUR work without hurting YOU."

MEN'S LEAGUE HELD MONTHLY BANQUET

The Twentieth Century Young Man Was Discussed by Two Speakers and in Debate

Last evening the Men's League of the Central Methodist Episcopal church met in the church parlors on Court street. The affair was their regular monthly banquet and the usual number were present. A bountiful supper was served by the ladies of the church under the direction of Mrs. Floyd Hurd. The postprandial program was opened by a vocal selection from a male quartet composed of J. C. Kline, T. T. Richards, H. E. Cary and G. L. Adkins. E. E. Van Pool was the first speaker. His topic was "The Twentieth Century Young Man." His remarks brought out a lengthy discussion before the floor was given to the next regular speaker, Frank Brown, whose theme was "Why Are Not More Men in the Church?" At the close of his remarks the debate was again taken up and lasted until half past nine. Among the speakers were S. C. Burnham, T. E. Bannison, Rev. J. H. Tippet, Harold Green, J. L. Hay, George Jacobs, W. I. Rothmel, J. C. Kline, F. H. Barfoot, and Messrs. Hughes, Van Valen, Porter and Clark. The next meeting of the organization will be held on the last Monday of March in the spacious dining room of the new Carll memorial church building.

LOCAL LACONICS

What an Ad Did: A. W. Thoma of Mineral Point is in the city today closing a lease on a large tract of land in the mining district. Mr. Thoma advertised the proposition in the Gazette and as a result was enabled to interest several parties in the deal immediately. Mr. Thoma says it pays to advertise.

Station Registered: Registration papers for the stallion "Tom Allen," a brown grade trotter foaled in 1894 and owned by Andrew Elleson of Edgerton, have been filed with the register of deeds.

Food for Quarantined: Word reached Capt. Fleming of the Salvation Army yesterday afternoon that the Conroy family on North River street, who are under quarantine, had been neglected and were suffering for want of food and he made it his duty and that of his assistants to send supplies to them with all possible haste. The city officials showed some resentment at this intrusion, but the fact remained that the people were in need of food.

Helpers' Band: The Helpers' Band met with their teacher, Mrs. F. T. Richards, on Monday evening and held their regular election of officers. The following were elected: President, Edna Parker; vice-president, Mabel Williams; secretary, Nellie Hollis; treasurer, Julia Austin. The organization of the Bertha Rutter memorial fund was effected and a social time followed. The class will meet monthly hereafter at the different homes of its members.

Horse Broke Leg: In some way it is thought possibly by throwing the entire weight onto one leg in coming to a sudden halt—a horse belonging to the Colvin Baking company this noon fracture the bone of a leg while being driven on Franklin street. It was necessary to shoot the animal.

CORONER'S JURY VERDICT TODAY

EVIDENCE IN RY. CATASTROPHE INQUEST IS ALL IN.

CONDUCTOR PECK EXAMINED

At Hospital This Morning—Is Certain That Operator Gave Him Signal—Did Not Touch Locomotive.

Today, but not until late this afternoon, perhaps, the coroner's jury, consisting of Halvor Skavlem, Charles Bay, John Comstock, E. A. Kemmerer, L. L. Fletcher, and E. E. Edgington, appointed to pass upon the causes and fix the blame, if any man is culpable, for the death of Fireman Joseph Maher of the DeKalb passenger who was killed in the terrible collision which occurred on the North Western railroad not far from the woolen mills on the night of February 14, will deliver its verdict. Nothing has developed to indicate that the findings will differ materially from those already reached by those familiar with the main facts of the catastrophe many days ago.

Conductor Peck Examined

A long delay has been necessitated by the critical condition of Conductor Randall Peck of the extra freight, who lay in an unconscious state at the Palmer hospital for many days after the night of horror and who is still in a dazed condition and unable to remember clearly the course of events which led up to the destruction of three lives and thousands of dollars' worth of property, though he is able to be dressed and to sit up. District Attorney Fisher and the jury closely cross-questioned him at the hospital this morning. His certainty, for instance, that the operator was on the depot platform and gave him the signal to pull out with the freight cannot be shaken, though such testimony is unsupported by anything that has gone before. This detail and the others he fixes with visible effort; seeming to grope back to the tragedy as one who has awakened from some vague and fearful dream whose outlines he tries in vain to recall.

Swears He Tasted No Liquor

The weight of the testimony is clearly against the theory that Peck was in his cups or had even tasted of liquor on the night in question. His associates on the train were certain that he had done nothing of the kind. And at the hospital this morning the unfortunate man protested vehemently that the accusation was untrue. His wife, who was with him in tears told the jury that in the fifteen years of their married life he had never been a drinking man. And afterwards T. M. Biddle Gunn and J. E. Honeysett, who live near the scene of the wreck and were among those to arrive before the relief train reached there, testified that they found Peck lying on some benches in the wrecked caboose. Mr. Gunn says that he leaned over to see if the man was breathing and to move his head to a more comfortable position, that he detected no odor of liquor, and that he is very certain that he would have done so had such an odor been discernible. Mr. Honeysett, held up the head-end of the door improvised as a litter, which was used to convey the injured man to the relief train. He also detected no trace whatever of liquor.

Jury Retires to Consult

The taking of testimony was concluded in Justice Barle's court-room at 11:45 a. m. and after District Attorney Fisher had spoken briefly to the jury, cautioning its members to take plenty of time and carefully weigh all the evidence because, should anyone be found guilty of culpable negligence, it might be necessary for the State to prosecute, the six retired to an adjoining room. After a few moments' consultation they called for all the written testimony, stating that they had determined to go over all of it again. Shortly after twelve they adjourned until two this afternoon when the deliberations were resumed.

The Verdict

An inquest taken at this City of Janesville, in the County of Rock, and State of Wisconsin, on the 15, 19, 20, 21 and 27th days of February, 1906, before Jesse Barle, one of the justices of the peace in the said county, upon the view of the body of Joseph Maher, there dead, by the jurors whose names are hereunto subscribed, who being duly sworn to inquire on behalf of this state when, in what manner and by what means, the said Joseph Maher came to his death, upon their oaths do say, that the said Joseph Maher came to his death at the town of Rock on the evening of February 14th, 1906, in a railroad collision between a passenger train known as train No. eleven (11) carrying an engine and a combination baggage and smoker and another car and train known as extra freight number of engine 1136, train in charge of Conductor Randall Peck, and engineer George Briscoe. That the said collision occurred at about 8:22 or 8:23 o'clock p. m. of said day, and that said collision was caused by the failure of said Conductor Randall Peck to ascertain to an absolute certainty of the arrival of No. 11 before the departure of his train, and that said collision was caused by the departure of the train in charge of Conductor Peck and engineer Briscoe before the arrival of train known as No. 11.

We further find that the practice of giving verbal orders from operators to trainmen is pernicious and believe that the same should be discontinued.

We further find that the practice of delivering orders regarding the movement of trains before the actual arrival of the train effecting the movement of trains concerning which orders are given, is a bad one, and such practice should be discontinued.

We further find that Conductor Randall Peck was not under the influence of liquor at the time of the wreck or immediately preceding the same. And we find that he is a man who is not in any way addicted to the use of intoxicating liquors.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Introduces the hero, Robert Warburton, a well to do, West Point graduate on duty in Arizona. After being in by an Indian raid, his commission in the army and leaves for European tour.

CHAPTER II.—Introduces the heroine, Miss Betty Annesley, daughter of a retired army officer, living near Washington. A beautiful, representative young American girl, whom Warburton has seen in Paris, is omitted, and follows to New York. On introduction on board steamer both fall.

CHAPTER III.—Upon reaching New York Warburton locates hotel in which the Annesleys are guests and discovers in order to see Miss Annesley once more. Chagrined to see young Russian count whom he met on steamer, bring Miss Annesley to the hotel and find her in the count and the Annesleys had disappeared.

CHAPTER IV.—Warburton goes to Washington to visit his relatives—a married brother, who holds a government position, and a sister engaged to an old school chum of his. Invited to accompany family to ball at British embassy, but declines. Concocts a scheme to play a joke on his sister and sister-in-law.

CHAPTER V.—Warburton meets his sister's fiancé whom he had not seen for eight years. Seizes the opportunity for the embassy ball and then proceeds to put his joke into execution, which is to disguise himself as a coachman and drive his sister and sister-in-law. Who must return alone from the embassy to their home.

CHAPTER VI.—Warburton in his disguise goes to British embassy and makes the place of Miss Annesley, whom he has bribed. He mistakes his carriage number, when called and gets the wrong passengers and drives away. He drives frantically about the streets pursued by mounted policemen. When carriage comes to a stop he springs down and throws his arms about the first of his passengers to right who proves to be Miss Annesley instead of his sister.

CHAPTER VII.—Warburton is arrested on a charge of drunkenness and abduction preferred by Miss Annesley and locked up over night. In police court where he has given the name of James Osborne, the charge of abduction is withdrawn but he is fined $2 for drunkenness. Sends note to "Chuck" his old chum, telling of his trouble.

CHAPTER VIII.—"Chuck" takes suit of clothes and money to pay the fine to city jail only to find that one had been arrested under name of James Osborne, receives note from Miss Annesley offering him position of coachman, which he decides to accept. In prison he meets his sister and sister-in-law, explaining his disappearance to his relatives, by stating that he had gone north suddenly on a hunting trip.

CHAPTER IX.—Miss Annesley, after closely questioning Warburton (known to her as James Osborne) at her home, hires him on probation. While being wheeled about the city he orders her to ride an exceptionally vicious thoroughbred called Pirate. With Miss Annesley's permission he saddles and mounts the horse which immediately bolts.

CHAPTER X.—After a fierce struggle Warburton succeeds in mastering Pirate and the police find him. Interview between Col. Annesley and daughter in which he tells her that he has invited the count to dine with them on the morrow.

CHAPTER XI.—Warburton assumes his duties as groom and servant, a French chef, a maid of the same nationality and a stable boy. Takes his first ride with Miss Annesley and is further questioned about his past.

CHAPTER XII.—The French chef gives Warburton lesson in serving at table as he is to act as butler at a dinner the next week. Miss Annesley gives him a shock when she orders him to drive her for a call on his sister. Fortunately he is not recognized by any of his relatives.

CHAPTER XIII.—Four days pass and Warburton becomes an accomplished butler; has met Count Karloff twice and has not been recognized. Miss Annesley gives a notice to Count Karloff who returns and she is saved from a bad accident with great difficulty by Warburton.

CHAPTER XIV.—While driving Miss Annesley in the city Warburton meets "Chuck" who gives him an account of the downfall of Col. Annesley, who previously to the opening of this story lost his own and his daughter's money at Monte Carlo. He is approached by the young Russian count, Count Karloff, who loans him $50,000, and tempts him by showing how he can make $300,000 by betraying his country, by furnishing money to Russia.

CHAPTER XV.—Count Karloff and Mrs. Chadwick while preparing to go to Miss Annesley's dinner talk over a previous love affair between them and of the Count's love for Miss Annesley, who has once refused his offer of marriage. Mrs. Chadwick, who still loves the count, tells him that she has the power to destroy his future prospects and to prevent his marriage to her friend.

CHAPTER XVI.—After some final instructions Warburton discharges the duties of butler so well that at Miss Annesley's dinner he attracts the attention of his former commanding officer, Col. Raleigh, who makes him one of the host regarding him and tells Miss Annesley stories of his doings as a soldier.

CHAPTER XVII.—After his duties as butler over Warburton goes outside and stands under the bow window listening to the music. Miss Annesley appears on the balcony in the moonlight, and after refusing another proposal from Count Karloff she throws away a rose which she has been fondling. After she had returned to the house Warburton searches for and finds the flower which she is carrying. Miss Annesley, who demands an explanation of his conduct.

CHAPTER XVIII.—Col. Raleigh accompanies Warburton to his room and tells him of his love for Miss Annesley. The colonel decides not to expose the surreptitious but gives him some friendly advice.

CHAPTER XIX.—A stovepipe's timely fall, and the consequent soot and dirt on Warburton's coat serve as a disguise when his sister, Nancy, calls on Miss Annesley. While on a chance visit to the library Warburton discovers the fortification over which Miss Annesley has drawn for her father. Spends a bad night trying to determine upon his

"When you are through," she finally said, "bring your cigars into the music-room."

"With the greatest pleasure, Mademoiselle," replied the count. "And play, if you so desire; our business is such that your music will be a pleasure added."

Her father nodded, but he could not force another smile to his lips. The brass rings of the portiere rattled, and she was gone. But she left behind a peculiar tableau, a tableau such as is formed by those who stand upon ice which is about to sink and engulf them.

The two men stood perfectly still. I to betray it.

"You dishonorable wretch!" The colonel balled his fists and protruded his nether lip. Only the table stood between them.

"That term or another, it does not matter. The fact remains that you have sold to me the fortification plans of your country, and though it be in times of peace, you are none the less guilty and culpable. Your daughter shall be my wife."

"I had rather strangle her with these hands!"—passionately.

"Well, why should I not have her for my wife? Who loves her more than I? I am rich; from hour to hour, from day to day, what shall I not plan to make her happy? I love her with all the fire and violence of my race and blood. I can not help it. I will not, can not live without her! Good God, yes! I recognize the villainy of my action. But I am mad to-night."

"So I perceive. The colonel gazed wildly about the walls for a weapon. There was not even the usual ornamental dagger.

A window again stirred mysteriously. A few drops of rain splashed on the glass and zigzagged down to the sash.

"Sooner or later your daughter must know. Request her presence. It rests with her, not with you, as to what course I must follow." Karloff was extraordinarily pale, and his dark eyes reflecting the dancing flames, sparkled like rubies.

He saw the birth of horror in the elder's eyes, saw it grow and grow. He saw the colonel's lips move spasmodically, but utter no sound. What was it he saw over his (the count's) shoulders and beyond? Instinctively he turned, and what he saw chilled the heat of his blood.

There stood the girl, her white dress marble-white against the dark, wine of the portiere, an edge of which one hand clutched convulsively. Was it Medusa's beauty or her magic that turned men into stone? My recollection is at fault. At any rate, so long as she remained motionless, neither man had the power to stir. She held herself perfectly erect; every fiber in her young body was tense. Her beauty became weirdly powerful, masked as it was with horror, doubt, shame, and reproach. She had heard; little or much was of no consequence. In the heat of their variant passions, the men's voices had risen to a pitch that penetrated beyond the room.

Karloff was the first to recover, and he took an involuntary step toward her; but she waved him back disdainfully.

"Do not come near me. I loathe you!" The voice was low, but every note was strident and unmissable.

He winced. His face could not have stung or burned more hotly had she struck him with her hand.

"Mademoiselle!"

She ignored him. "Father, what does this mean?"

"Agony!" The colonel fell back into his chair, pressing his hands over his eyes.

"I will tell you what it means!" cried Karloff, a rage possessing him. He had made a mistake. He had misjudged both the father and the child. He could force her into his arms, but he would always carry a burden of hate. "It means that this night you stand in the presence of a dishonored parent, a man who has squandered your inheritance over gambling tables, and who, to recover these misused sums, has sold to me the principal fortification plans of his country. That is what it means, Mademoiselle."

She grasped the portiere for support.

"Father, is this thing true?" Her voice fell to a terror-stricken whisper.

"Oh, it is true enough," said Karloff. "God knows that it is true enough. But it rests with you to save him. Become my wife, and yonder fire shall swallow his dishonor—and mine. Refuse, and I shall expose him. After all, love is a primitive state, and with it we go back to the beginning; before it honor or dishonor is nothing. Tonight there is nothing, nothing in the world save my love for you, and the chance that has given me the power to force you to be mine. What a fury and a tempest love produces! It makes an honorable man of the knave; a rascal of the man of honor; it has toppled thrones, destroyed nations; obliterated races."

Well, I have become a rascal. Mademoiselle, you must become my wife."

He lifted his hand—some head restlessly.

"Without giving him so much as a glance, she swept past him and sank on her knees at her father's side, taking his hands by the wrists and pressing them down from his face.

"Father, tell him he lies. Tell him he lies!" Ah, the entreaty, the love, the anxiety, the terror that blended her tones!

HADLEY GAINS POINT IN COURT

Missouri Supreme Bench Holds Witnesses in Oil Hearing Must Answer.

STATE LAWS MUST BE OBEYED

When Foreign Corporations Are Permitted to Enter Commonwealth to Do Business They Impliedly Agree to Conform to Local Statutes.

Jefferson City, Mo., Feb. 27.—The supreme court Monday held that witnesses were compelled to answer questions in the Standard Oil hearing in St. Louis. This decision the point on which H. H. Rogers declined to answer questions at the hearing in New York. The St. Louis hearing was discontinued a week ago until the supreme court's decision on the point involved should be handed down.

The court lays down the law that when foreign corporations as the oil companies are permitted to come into Missouri to do business they impliedly agree to obey the laws of the state and that they must obey the laws.

The opinion also holds that the companies can not refuse to produce the books and papers which authorized representatives of the state demand.

Covers New York Case.

The ruling covers the same questions that were before Justice Gildersleeve of the New York supreme court regarding testimony of H. H. Rogers.

This case was brought to the supreme court by Attorney General Hadley after officers of the Republic Oil Company had refused to produce at the inquiry before Special Commissioner Anthony books and papers of the company by which Hadley expected to prove a trust agreement between the Standard Republic and Waters-Pierce oil companies. Attorney General Hadley asked that the court order the demanded books and papers produced and witnesses to answer questions asked.

Hopes to Make Rogers Answer.

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 27.—In an interview here Monday on the decision of the Missouri supreme court Attorney General Hadley said: "The decision, as I understand it, is all that I have asked for. I shall now ask Henry Wollman to present the decision to Judge Gildersleeve in New York and ask for an order requiring H. H. Rogers to answer the questions I put to him. Those questions related to the stock ownership and, since the Missouri supreme court has decided the point Judge Gildersleeve will doubtless order Rogers to answer, not all, perhaps, but the most important of my questions."

Chance for Appeal.

Judge Gildersleeve has never made an order in the case, though he gave an oral opinion from the bench. As each side asked him to wait until the Missouri court had decided, he can now decide, knowing the position of the Missouri court. I shall go to New York before long, but if Rogers is ordered to answer it will be some time, perhaps several weeks, before the hearing is resumed."

Frank Hegerman, the Missouri attorney for the Standard Oil company, said: "That decision suits everybody except the Standard Oil company. However, I understand that the decision doesn't instruct the commissioner to compel an answer to questions put before him by attorneys for the state, so that there is a chance for an appeal from the decision whenever the commissioner makes his ruling."

The Pain Family

You know them; they are numerous, and make their presence felt everywhere. The names of the family are Headache, Toothache, Earache, Backache, Stomach ache, Neuralgia, etc. They are sentinels that warn you of any derangement of your system. When the "brain nerves" become exhausted or irritated, Headache makes you miserable; if the stomach nerves are weak, indigestion results, and you double up with pain, and if the more prominent nerves are affected, Neuralgia simply makes life unendurable. The way to stop pain is to soothe and strengthen the nerves. Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills do this. The whole Pain family yield to their influence. Harmless if taken as directed.

I find Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills an excellent remedy for overcoming headache, neuralgia and distressing pains of all sorts. I have used them for the past seven years in this capacity with the best of results.

THE ANNUAL MARCH CLEARANCE SALE OF FURNITURE

Begins Thursday, March 1st, at W. H. ASHCRAFT'S. It is the one great furniture sale of Southern Wisconsin during each year, and is the time to buy for all who need furniture, as the prices are made so low that everything sells.

WE HAVE IN STOCK A NUMBER OF PIECES OF

PARLOR FURNITURE,

Christmas goods, that will be sold at ONE-HALF REGULAR PRICE.

Our Two Lines of Felt Mattresses are the best made. One of which is the Ostermoor, which has no equal. Ostermoor today stands at the head of mattresses, being softer and more durable than the best hair, and costing about one-half the price. Everybody pays the same price, $15.00 each. The other line is the Stearns & Foster Felt Mattress, which we will sell at the extremely low price of $6.00 and up, according to quality of felt. They are fine mattresses, and none are quite as good value at prices asked.

In Center Tables an immense quantity have just been received, of which a solid oak at $1.50 will lead for a cheap table.

We have the largest stock of Book Cases, Couches, Rockers and Dining Chairs ever shown in Janesville.

The 1906 full line of Children's Go-Carts are ready to be shown and are the best we ever had.

No goods will be sold at cut prices until Thursday, March 1st, at 7 a. m., to give all an equal chance at the bargains, many of which cannot be replaced. CALL AND SEE OUR GOODS.
